A professional couple active in church and community considers the implications of building a vacation cabin in a poor and environmentally degraded world.

Commentary 21

Case: What God Has Joined 31

Friends and professional counselors seek to assist a couple with marital problems stemming from child abuse, heavy drinking, physical violence, and differing reactions to sexual intimacy.

Commentary 37

PART II VIOLENCE/NONVIOLENCE

Case: A Life for a Life? 51

A Florida state legislator is undecided about a bill to abolish the death penalty, wondering whether the problems with the death penalty system can be effectively reformed.

Commentary 57

Case: Vietnam's Legacies 67

A Vietnam veteran puzzles over what to say to his grandson about draft registration and the war in Iraq and Afghanistan.

Commentary 74

PART III POVERTY

Case: Homelessness: The How and Why of Caring 93

A social worker who assists the homeless is undecided about her city's proposed anti-panhandling legislation and contemplates what approaches would best address homelessness.

Commentary 100

Case: Who Cares about Haiti Anyway? 109

An analysis of foreign aid and intervention in the context of the international community's failure to deliver the aid it promised Haiti after the devastating earthquake of 2010.

Commentary 115

PART IV THE ENVIRONMENT

Case: Oil and the Caribou People 127

A teacher visits a Native American clan gathering in Northeastern Alaska where options are being considered to protect the Porcupine Caribou Herd threatened by oil exploration in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge.

Commentary 134

Case: Whose Water? 149

A rural county commissioner is faced with the need to find millions to build an up-to-date county water plant, a bottling company willing to foot the cost in return for access to water reserves, and environmentalists and business owners opposing the bottling plant.

Commentary 158

PART V BUSINESS

Case: Sustaining Dover 167

A city council representative and small business owner grapples with the social, economic, and environmental dimensions of sustainable development when Walmart asks for a zoning change so that it can construct a Supercenter in the City of Dover.

Commentary 175

Case: Executive Pay: Reward or Excess? 189

A corporate board of directors struggles with approving annual compensation packages for the executive team when the company's profits suffer due to the weakened economy and when the wages of other employees are frozen.

Commentary 195

PART VI HEALTH

Case: How Many Children? 207

A community college class on bioethics discusses the Octomom case, in which a woman gave birth to octuplets following embryo transfer, thus bringing the number of her children to fourteen.

Commentary 213

Case: Keeping the Doors Open 223

A newly hired public hospital CEO discovers a huge operating deficit and attempts to decide whose interests take priority in choosing what should be cut.

Commentary 231
